FORTY-NINER DANCE TONIGHT

Entertainment Features Salome, Can-Can Dancers, Vocal Solo, in Variety Program

All Students May Attend Freshman-Sponsored Affair

"Step right up, podner, and have a straight shot on the house. Yep, Salome's dance comes on right soon now, but wait till ya' see the new can-can dancers we got—yipee!" No, you've read the right thing; Salome is going to dance tonight, but in the person of Mary Rose Dennison, and the occasion will be the "Forty-Niners" dance given by the class of '49 under the direction of Freshman Activities Group C, in the Women's Gym from 9 until 1 o'clock, with off-the-record music.

VARIED PROGRAM

Chairman of the entertainment for the dance is Jock Golden, and he has arranged a varied program which will include, besides Salome and the can-can dancers, an instrumental quartet under the direction of Franklin Dennis, a vocal solo by Barbara Rodenbarn, accompanied by Virginia Mahon, and a vocal solo by "Happy" Sovey, accompanied by Kathy Morgan.

Other committee chairmen are Barbara Downing, refreshments; Harriet Carroll, decorations; Jean Kinney, publicity; and Jim Schaar, public address.

TICKET SALE

Tickets for the dance may be purchased at the Library arch today, or at the dance. The price is 35 cents a couple or 25 cents stag. A student body card is necessary for stags, and one member of each couple must have one also.

The dance is open to members of all classes, and upperclassmen are especially invited to come. Toni Trigo, chairman of the dance, says, "Don't worry if you're planning to attend the play that evening; come over to the dance afterward. The entertainment is scheduled for 11 o'clock, and the theme is 'come as you are'."

Annual Concert Tuesday Night

The 54th symphony orchestra concert will be held Tuesday, December 11, at 8:15 p. m. in the Morris Dailey auditorium.

Thomas Eagan, assistant professor of music, will conduct the symphony orchestra for the fourth year.

The program will feature Mrs. Janet Meyer playing a piano concerto.

The public is invited for Tuesday night's performance; admission is free.

We Still Need Toys

Come in and see the Spartan Daily Christmas tree! The branches are evenly shaped and the decorations are high-lighted by red and blue spotlights.

However, except for a few small packages resting on the branches and a modest array of gifts beneath the tree, left by the Delta Nu Epsilon, Home Economics societies, and Daily members, the "tree corner" is sadly lacking spirit.

Bring in a gift Monday morning!

OUTWARD BOUND PLEASES LOCAL FIRST NIGHTERS

Shirley Wilber held the audience in her delightful interpretation of "humble little Mrs. Midget," and Al Johnson was outstanding in his role in a poised and sure fashion when "Outward Bound" was given as the annual Yuletide presentation to San Joseans last night. Wendell Johnson coped adequately with definite limitations of the Morris Dailey auditorium in organizing an attractive setting which was an unusually realistic replica of a ship's cabin.

Most entertaining scene of the play took place in the third act when Al Johnson (Mr. Pryor) sarcastically mocks Jim Schaar (Mr. Lingley) when he attempts to conduct a meeting to prepare his shipmates to meet the heavenly inquisitor (Ed Cerney), which is a complete farce.

One appealing moment came when Shirley Wilber (Mrs. Midget) pleads to adopt Al Johnson as her ward in the "hereafter."

Director of the production was James Butler and the rest of the cast includes Charles Perez as the minister, Duke; Conrad Smith as the bartender; Anne Haffing and Brent Morris as the lovers. Tonight will be the last night of the performance, which opens at 8:30.

Journalists Frolic For Santa Claus

Tuesday, December 11, St. Nick will pay another pre-Christmas visit to San Jose State college. He wants to see the tree in the Publications office because that is where the "30" club will hold its Christmas party. All journalism majors are asked to be on hand to see the man in the red suit and put their orders in early.

In keeping with the spirit, members are asked to bring a gift. But this won't keep you from eating—the cost is not to exceed 25 cents. Refreshments, games, dancing to records will comprise the program of the evening.

FLYING CLUB TO BUY AIRPLANE

Definite plans have been made by the Flying club to purchase an airplane to be used by club members.

Hiring of a licensed pilot who will give flying instructions to students wishing lessons, and also having a mechanic to take care of the maintenance of the plane, was included in the plan presented. The club will endeavor to make instruction and flying hour rates as low as possible. It is hoped that the purchase of the plane can be made in the near future as soon as estimates of costs have been procured.

Noon Dance Today

The regular Friday noon dance will be held today from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., reminds Bill McFarland of the Council recreation committee. Music will be off the record, as usual, and "as you like it."

Sponsored by the Student Council, the student body noon dances have become a popular Friday feature. Admission is free, and all students on the campus are invited to attend.

Morning Deadline For Folk Dancers

Ten o'clock today is the deadline for signing up to go to the Folk Dance festival in Oakland Sunday. Members of the Folk Dance club and any other interested students will go by bus at 12 o'clock Sunday noon. Cost of the trip will be 50 cents per person. Students may sign up with Bruce McNeil, Beverly Blackman, Mrs. Wilson, or Miss Lenore Norona in the Women's PE department.

The festival, sponsored by the California Folk Dancing Federation, will take place in the Oakland Civic auditorium from 1 until 5. Two exhibitions will be given by the Festival Workshop and the Berkeley Festival Dancers.

Reservations have been made at Oakland's leading restaurants to accommodate groups of 15 and 20 people. This will enable the dancers to finish dinner in time to return at 7 for an old-fashioned Christmas party which is scheduled for the evening. The party will be at the German Pioneer home and will feature games, stunts, food, and Santa Claus, of course.

"All students are invited to attend the festival," announces Mrs. Sarah Wilson, faculty adviser of the Folk Dance club at State.

Pre-Meds, Note!

Next annual medical aptitude test will be given Friday, December 14, in room 103 at 2 o'clock. This test should be taken by all pre-medical students planning to enter a medical college at any time during the year 1946.

All those interested should report at their earliest convenience to the office of Dr. Jay C. Elder, room 103. A fee of $2 is required of each person taking the test, which is given only once each year.

NOON ENDS SALE OF GRIPE DINNER TICKETS

All Students Urged To Complain At Annual Dinner

This morning is the last chance to buy tickets for the annual Gripe dinner, set for Monday evening at Lucca's Cafe in Santa Clara. The tickets will be on sale in the Business office until 12 noon only. None will be sold at the dinner. Price for the dinner is $1.70. "This is a fancy price," concedes Hugh Johnston, Gripe dinner chairman, "but the restaurant has promised us a first class, full course fried chicken dinner."

OPENS AT 6:30

The dinner will begin at 6:30 p. m., and will be followed by a three-hour "gripe" session. At this time students will air freely any and all complaints they may have against any phase of the college scene. This may include everything from student affairs to the administration. There will be no faculty representatives present.

Individual student participation in the Gripe dinner is urged in addition to the usual organizational representation. Every student who has something "bothering" him is invited to attend the dinner and have his say, Johnston declares.

OFFICIAL REPORTS

Reports will be made by representatives from the Student Council, Student Court, and the principal campus organizations. The Spartan Daily, La Torre, Rally committee, and the Social Affairs committee will send delegates to get student views on their activities during the quarter.

Lucca's cafe is situated at 965 Grant street, an extension of the Alameda. Those without cars may take the Santa Clara bus and get off at Franklin street.

Schedules On Sale

Schedules of classes for next quarter will go on sale in the Spartan Shop today, announced the Registrar's office.

Several hundred more schedules are being printed for next quarter in view of the increased population expected on campus. Catalogs for 1946-47 will not be available until April of next year, said Joe West, registrar. "However, we will have reprints of the 1945-46 catalog available soon for those who were not able to get one."

WINTER FORMAL DECEMBER 15

A novel ski lodge room will serve as a restaurant center at the Social Affairs-sponsored "Wintermist" dance to be held at the Scottish Rite temple Saturday night, December 15.

Bids will be on sale all next week for $1 by members of the Social Affairs committee at a booth in the Library arch.

Buddy King's 16 piece orchestra will furnish music for the semi-formal dance. Committee heads for the event are Sue Dee Smart, bids; Pete Galli, decorations; Gordon Martin, posters; and Pat Poulson, refreshments.

USO Girls Needed To Entertain At Xmas

Christmas time is a gay and happy event, yet there will be many hospitalized soldiers, sailors, and marines unable to get home to enjoy the festivities.

USO girls can help to brighten Christmas eve for the boys at Dibble hospital by signing up with Mrs. Izetta Pritchard for the Christmas party planned by the Soroptimist club.

Transportation will be furnished to and from the hospital. The party will be from 7 to 9 p. m.

BULLETIN BOARD FULL OF INTEREST

"Board of Education," is the title of one of the bulletin boards in the upper hall of the Science building. It's "dedicated to that breadth and liberality of education which leads to culture," and can be depended upon for interest.

Some of the information and material posted on the board this week include an article on race prejudice, an announcement of a job opportunity for an entomology student, the latest book list from the library — with the scientific books checked. Van Dreuten's "Voice of the Turtle" is one of those checked but the Broadway hit play has a question-mark near it, questioning whether it is of scientific value. Pictures of the Loma Prieta field trip made by the members of the Entomology club are also on the board.

Below the board, on the counter, are exhibited the findings of the latest field trip to Half Moon Bay and Moss Beach. Clam worms, Polynoid worms, peanut worms, a small clam, a chiton or sea cradle, turban snails, rock oysters, or rock-boring clams, and hermit crabs are on display.

Lieutenant, Former Student Here, Gives Eye-Witness Account Of Atomic Bomb Destruction In Hiroshima

"There was nothing but a level, blackened plain, strewn with debris, stretching for miles," said Lt. John Aberle, former San Jose State college student and eye-witness of the effects of the atomic bomb in Hiroshima. A letter from Lt. Aberle described his trip by jeep through the naval base of Kuri on into Hiroshima. A city of 300,000 people was a spot of "silence and desolation," and where shortly before a large city, a city where great buildings rivaled San Francisco, broad streets filled with autos and trolleys and the hum of industry could be heard for miles around, there was nothing but "stares of hatred and even evidence of outward hostility."

REFUGEES FLEE

"After commandeering a jeep, we moved slowly down the long road toward Hiroshima that was thickly clogged with army traffic and a stream of refugees heading toward Hiro, with their possessions stacked high upon their backs. They were carrying a variety of household goods piled on small carts, bicycle side carts, and some were literally dragging their goods along the road," he said.

"The sides of the road were filled with naval guns, ammunition, camouflage material, bombs, small arms, dynamite, all guarded by grim-faced MP's. At Kuri there is nothing left of the dock and industrial facilities."

Upon reaching Hiroshima, Lt. Aberle said, "We saw street cars still sitting on the tracks where they had busily engaged in the business of carrying commuters to work when the bomb was dropped. Along the road streets were hundreds of hastily dug graves. Autos were in their parking places, but all of these items were gutted and twisted steel framework."

BODIES CREMATED

"Human bodies had been turned to ashes sooner than one can snap one's fingers. That is the reason why no plagues arose after the bombing. There were no bodies left to decompose. Every particle of the human body had been cremated. Truly one must see the results of an atomic bomb to appreciate its importance. Another war will destroy all humanity."

The Spirit Of Christmas

Christmas is here again. It is being approached by most people as it should be, with a spirit of joy and regarded as an opportunity for worship and rest and enjoyment of family and friends.

Every year more and more of the Christmas spirit seems to be lost in a cloud of commercialism which is growing more dense.

Americans have been accused of being too commercial, and when Christmas is accompanied by such a frenzied, frantic, mad rush of shopping as it is, it must be admitted that there is justice in the statement.

The deluge of ads which appear in our papers and magazines as the holiday season approaches is evidence of this commercialism which is robbing us of the joy of Christmas, which is changing the holiday from one of joyous thanksgiving to one colossal gift competition.

Crowds push, shove, and struggle in their hurry to buy this and that. By the time Christmas comes many people are in a state of collapse from trying to get a gift of suitable price and quality for "Aunt Minnie."

"It is more blessed to give than to receive," is a quotation which is hackneyed from use. It is a thought which should be given more attention by most people, because it is what they are forgetting. In their anxiety to outdo each other in expensive gifts they entirely overlook the meaning of Christmas and the proper way to celebrate it.

Christmas is the anniversary of the birth of Christ, a day when families get together to share a common thankfulness and good fellowship. When more people realize this, Christmas will regain its proper place in American life.

RAINY WEATHER OUT OF FAVOR

San Jose weather is something we never have been able to understand. It gets a good start raining, and everything is nice and muddy. Maybe it even blows a little, and whips a few remaining leaves from the trees. But before you know it, the wind dies, the clouds break up, and the sun rises into a clear sky; just about the time, back home, when we would be saying, "Well guess we'll be wearing boots and raincoats until spring."

Folks around here don't seem to feel right with nice wet rain on their faces, and wind blowing up their sleeves, and deep puddles to step in. They want the lion's share of the world's sunshine, and cry when it is taken away, even for an hour or so. Maybe the general opinion of sun-loving Californians was expressed by a friend of ours the other day. "I do so enjoy seeing the sun shine," she said. "It makes everything so sunny."

Ode To Gold Mine

Native sons and daughters,
(And all you furriners too.)
Remember tonight there's Something special to do.

Since history moves in cycles,
The class of forty nine
Prepare their annual theme,
In accordance with the time.

So prepare for Hangman's Hollow,
And Dangerous Dan McGrew
Plus the sheriff of Corpses' Canyon,
And the woman known as Lou.

The girls' gym's the gold field
So do come with the rest,
To the Freshman revival
Of the real old West.

IN PASSING

By ROWLAND MITCHELL

By the way, whatever became of Carter's Little Liver Pills? I haven't heard that old familiar song for so many months I'm beginning to think those happy days they promised are REALLY here. Or perhaps I haven't been listening to the wrong programs lately.

Also missing from the airways—but not missed—is the old "modern design" routine, "on land, in the air, and on the sea!" Remember? As though any-one could forget! Sometimes I think radio is on the way out, judging from the trend of "spot" announcements in the last few years.

PLUG UGLY CLUB

Reader's Digest, I noticed, took a good-natured though effective poke at this obnoxious form of radio advertising by sponsoring "Plug Ugly" club not long ago.

Membership was obtained simply by filling out and mailing in an application blank printed on a back page of the magazine. Although the club also denounced the monotonous, "on the hour every hour" advertising technique, its chief concern was the vulgar types of ads, such as those exploiting human bodily functions and disorders.

One of the provisions of membership in this Plug Ugly club was that each new member should NOT receive, "at no extra cost, a life-size wall chart, printed in natural color, illustrating the stomach and other internal organs immediately after a heavy meal."

LONG WAY TO GO

But though we may not hear so much discussion of liver bile, nervous distress, and upset stomach on the air these days, still radio has a long way to go in regaining its former dignity and self-respect.

Or perhaps it is the radio LISTENER who has lost dignity and self-respect. You know, that's what the advertising experts who write those exasperating ads imply.

They'll maintain, for instance, that any chap who has heard how "it does the work of calomel but has no calomel in it" will go to a drug store and ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills nine times out of ten. Not because he wants to show his appreciation to the sponsors of "Inner Sanctum." Not that,

Nor is he convinced of the integrity of the product. On the contrary, he's heard that infamous transcription message so many times, and suffered so in the hearing, that he loathes everything even remotely concerned with it, including the product AND the sponsor.

SLUGGISH LIVER

But when a fellow is suffering with a sluggish liver, or what he thinks is same, what is he to do? Go to a doctor? These days? Don't be funny. Besides, it's only a minor ailment. A few pills ought to fix him up. Any pills but Carter's Little Liver Pills, that is. He wouldn't buy one of those if his liver was a bucket of bile behind schedule.

OFF TO LONG'S

So off he goes to Long's drug store to shop the open market like an intelligent consumer. He browses around the drug counter for 10 or 15 minutes (look again, they DO have a drug counter there), and when he finally comes out guess what he's bought? That's right, a bottle of those darned Carter's Little Liver Pills. What is his feeble excuse?

"I thought I'd try them just this once."

Yes, we may conclude the ad writers were perhaps right after all! It is the radio listener, as well as radio itself, who displays a lack of dignity and self-respect. For whereas the "plug ugly" is merely a means to an end, it is the radio listener who actually fulfills that end.

CHEAP ADS

Personally, I have no patience with one who allows himself thus to be worn down and won over by the persistent pecking away of cheap advertising plugs while his own intelligence, nay his very conscience, reviles. "The above all, to thine own self be true," etc. It's really an ardent subject with me, and one that always upsets me gastronomically.

I'll be back later, on another subject, but right now it's me for the Co-op and a spot of Alka-seltzer. "Alkalize with Alkaseltzer," I always say.

MAGAZINE SHOWS TASTE OF NEWSPAPER READERS

The news section and the sports pages are Dad's, the home economics and society sections are Mom's, and the comics go to the children. This is the way the paper is supposed to be divided of a morning, according to popular opinion.

BUT, some startling facts have come to light through the investigations of the Advertising Research Foundation of the association of National Advertisers and the American Association of Advertising Agencies, who publish a research magazine entitled, "The Continuing Study of Newspaper Reading." The magazine has been ordered for the Library and two copies are on hand in the Reference room.

TYPICAL TOWN

This foundation takes as a subject for its exceedingly thorough research a paper in a typical American town and makes a survey of its readers to find out how many people of each sex have read what news items, advertisements, features, etc.

For instance, the supposition that women do not read sports is exploded by the data of these surveys. Women read sports, and the news sections, too. Some men read the home economics and society sections, and everybody reads the comics.

Interviewers are selected, trained and assigned to specified sections of the city. Nearly all the calls are made at homes. Only adults, 18 years or older, are interviewed.

92 PAPERS

So far, 92 newspapers have been surveyed in this manner. The papers analyzed are in towns located in all sections of the country.

The interviewer places a clean copy of the newspaper before the reader who is being interviewed and goes through the paper with him page by page asking him to point out which articles and advertisements he has read. The interviewer marks the ones which the reader says he has read.

The results are compiled and studied. The publication has sections listing the 10 best-read general news stories for men and for women and the five best-read sports stories for men and women. Other sections list the readership by men and women of various continuing editorial features, the number of readers who have stopped and read anything on a page and the number of readers of either sex who read either the national or local advertisements.

SYMBOLS TELL

The actual paper surveyed is reproduced with appropriate symbols on each article to show how many people have read that particular item.

Figures at the top of each page of the paper indicate the per cent of interviewees who had read any editorial item, or picture, or ad, etc. on that particular page.

The magazine is not printed on any certain date, but is published whenever a certain survey is finished and the results tabulated. The issues in the Library are 91 and 92 for August and September, respectively.

Advertisers are finding the survey results highly valuable, according to all reports.

ADVANCED DESIGN CLASS DOES 'HI SPOT' MURALS

Twenty-three students in Milton Lanyon's Advanced Design class are painting murals for decoration of the local "High Spot," a youth center in the YWCA for high school students. The class meets at the "Hi Spot" three times a week to work on their murals, which are being done in oils. "We have been trying to conform to high school atmosphere," states Lanyon. Dorothy Ashman, Dorothy Hazdovac, Marguerite Siddall, Jayne Krause and Bonnie Brown are working on one of the two large murals. They are painting a football scene in action—complete with yell leaders. The other large mural depicts a soda fountain scene and has the atmosphere of the typical meeting place of the hungry high students. Millicent Tillman, Jean Thaden, Marian Clark, Delayne Broadbent, and Marian Du Jardin are at work on it.

Jessie Steinagle, Elise Hunt and Mary Ford have been painting a pair of jitterbugs, and a jalopy scene is the effort of Alta Fulton, Janice Boynton, and Aloha Stokes.

Individual units, as in the case of Art Gardner's basketball player, are being painted by Marsha Blase, Esther Kaufman, June Hanson, and Grace Schwab. Jack Costello and Jerry Brown are painting pennants of different schools along the beams on the "Hi Spot."

The "Hi Spot" was started in 1944 under the direction of Mrs.

Daily Distribution

Dailies are now available in other places besides Publications office. In order to avoid the traffic tieup usually found there at 10 o'clock, a distribution box has been placed at the north entrance to the quad.

Dailies may also be found in the lobby of the Morris Dailey auditorium, the Art wing, Home Economics building, and the Science building.

Leo Sarter, Miss Marion Wiley of the YWCA staff is in charge of it now. John Peterson, son of Dr. P. Victor Peterson, was first president of the Hi Spot.

The candlelight ceremony is to be read by president Stan Black and will be held at the home of Banning Fenton, a member. Men to be initiated into DSG are James Chamberlain, Bud Rhodes, Don Bischoff, Keith Brown, Ken Aubineau, and Will Kessler.

After the reading of the rituals a banquet will be held in honor of the new members at Lucca's. It will be attended by alumni members, active members, and Dr. Earl Campbell, DSG adviser.

Kappa Sigma

It was a happy surprise Wednesday night when the "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," Ruthie Schallow, passed a box of sweets to her sorority sisters to announce her engagement to Ken Peterson of Watsonville, formerly a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity. He attended FBI school in Washington, D. C.

Ruthie is a G. E. major and vice president of Kappas. She is planning to be married right after she graduates.
